PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE.....

A prosperous New Year to you all and it is my hope that you experience more love, peace, joy, and purpose in 2022.

It is also my hope that we each become more involved in the inner workings of LCRTA. There are so many ways this can be done. In our yearbook on page 18, under Standing Rules, there is a list of the various committees. Each one of those would welcome additional members. When there is a need of a special committee to be formed, such as Budget, Audit, or Nominating, how about stepping up to say: "I can help with that!" A third way is to encourage retired teachers that you know to be members of our organization. Promote our purpose with exuberance and perhaps those individuals will come on board. Finally, to communicate our purposes to others, we have to be knowledgeable on issues in our Ohio Legislature, the availability with Protective Services, and what the needs are in the Lake County community. Tom Moscovic, Terri Herbert and Louise Bennet are top notch in helping us to do just that.

On behalf of the Board, let's see each other at our luncheon on February 8. Let's help Sue McCarter out and meet her reservation deadline. The caterer is very specific about that; therefore, NO RESERVATIONS will be accepted after the deadline. After all, it is always good to be kind to someone's wishes, no matter the situation. I like to think so.

At Home Medical Tests

Would you trust an at-home medical test? It turns out Americans over age 65 do, more than any other age group. One survey of 1,162 U.S. adults examined the level of trust among different age groups regarding at-home health tests such as cholesterol tests, stool samples and COVID-19 tests. The results of our survey show that the older the person, the more likely they are to trust the results of an at-home medical test just as much as a test administered in a doctor's office.

At home health tests have been found to be remarkably accurate. One study concluded that untrained users were "able to properly perform home tests and obtain accurate results, yielding high correlations with laboratory and health professional-performed tests."

The COVID-19 pandemic has created a surge in start-up companies selling at-home medical tests, many of which have yet been approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA). Some at-home COVID-19 tests currently on the market have been cautioned against by some experts.

Key Findings:

- * Nearly twice as many seniors trust the results of an at-home COVID-19 test than Generation Z.
- * Of the 12 types of at-home health tests included in the survey, baby boomers were more likely than Generation Z to trust the results in 11 cases and equally as likely in the other.
- * Baby boomers were at least twice as likely than Generation Z to trust at-home stool sample tests, diabetes tests, food intolerance tests, Lyme disease tests, STD/STI tests and blood tests.
- * 83% of adults believe public health will improve if more at-home health testing is implemented.
- * 62% of adults agree that the federal government should provide more funding for at-home testing and wearable monitors.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT....

By Tom Moscovic

Ohio Voucher Deception and Annie Get your Gun

8 Lies About Private School Vouchers

1. When it comes to education, one size doesn't fit all.

What does this mean? Is this a one-liner that is supposed to indicate traditional public schools as having no options or choices within the system? The public system has a variety of choices in curricular, co-curricular and athletic options. In fact, the typical school district has significantly more choices for students than the typical private school.

GRADE: F

2. School Choice saves taxpayers money.

You did not show your work because you can't. Your universal voucher bill creates a new, bloated bureaucracy in the State Treasurer's office with a file for every student that will cost, not save, taxpayers millions and millions of dollars. You are going to refund parents for more than 100,000 students. You're going to write checks to home-schooling parents. GRADE: F

3. Competition breeds excellence.

Free-market principles have been applied to public schools to promote segregation and institutional racism. Again you don't show your work because there is no credible research to back up your claim. This same misleading answer was given to justify charter schools like ECOT. GRADE: F.

4. All students benefit from education freedom.

Students benefit from a quality educational opportunity. Strong public schools strengthen our communities. Your scheme will harm our students, our families, our taxpayers, our communities. GRADE: F.

5. Parents are powerless to fight against political and sexualized material.

School district patrons have the opportunity to be heard at board meetings with elected school board. They have access to school administrators and teachers. Parents are not powerless in influencing the direction of traditional public schools. But can the same be said for a parent and student who may disagree with any of the religious, cultural, customs or more of private schools regarding race, gender, political views, religious freedom, etc.? Public schools accept all children. Private schools pick and choose their enrollees. GRADE: F

6. Too many public schools are well-funded, but underperforming.

Quick history lesson. In 1997, the Ohio Supreme Court ruled the way lawmakers and the governor funds public education in Ohio is unconstitutional. In 2021, a quarter century later, after passing the two-year state budget, lawmakers and Gov. DeWine admitted that are not fully funding public schools. GRADE: F

7. Fund teachers and students, not bureaucrats.

Again, you can't show your work. This statement is inaccurate. It is meant to inflame Ohioans against the public system. GRADE: F

COMMUNITY PARTICIPATION

By Louise Bennet

For our February luncheon meeting the organization receiving a helping hand will be the United Way of Lake County. The United Way, in turn, spreads its help across the entire county by distributing our donations to the many food banks located here.

Some suggestions offered by a United Way representative include:

Pancake mix	mashed potatoes in pouches
Bottled water	toilet paper & toiletries
Macaroni and Cheese in cups

Suggestions from people being served at a food bank gave interesting insight to items which would be most appreciated:

Powdered milk in a box	Stove Top stuffing
spices	sugar, flour, oil
tea bags	coffee
Cake mix and frosting (to make a cake for a child)
Salt and pepper (purchased as a pair about 3" tall)
Dishwashing detergent

Canned veggies, fruit, soup would also be welcomed as would pasta, sauces, peanut butter, and jelly. These are some non-traditional items that are always welcome.

8. Ohio doesn't underfund education, we misspend money.

Your answers are wrong and redundant. See your grade on answer #6. The massive misspending by the state has been the tens of millions of fraudulent dollars given to charter school operators like Bill Lager and ECOT.

Vouchers Hurt Ohio

On January 4, 2022, a lawsuit was filed in Franklin County Common Pleas Court challenging the constitutionality of the rapidly growing private school voucher program that is siphoning away hundreds of millions of dollars from public school students, teachers, classrooms and communities.

Former Ohio Supreme Court Chief Justice and current Columbus City Schools Board Member Eric Brown said the lawsuit asks the judicial system a simple, but critical question: "Where does the Ohio General Assembly get the power to fund private school vouchers? The power is now where to be found in the Ohio Constitution. In fact, the Ohio Constitution forbids it. Lawmakers have the authority and responsibility to fund "a" system of "common schools," with common standards and resources for all of Ohio's taxpayers, parents and students," Brown said at a press conference outlining the lawsuit. "Funding schools that aren't for everybody is not the business of the Ohio General Assembly, and it is not the responsibility of Ohio taxpayers to pay for these private schools," Brown said.

“Funding schools that aren’t for everybody is not the business of the Ohio General Assembly, and it is not the responsibility of Ohio taxpayers to fund these private schools,” Brown said. “The Ohio General Assembly either knows they are violating the Ohio Constitution and doesn’t care or the members who support expanding the private school vouchers need a history lesson themselves.”

William L. Phillis, executive director for the Coalition of Equity & Adequacy of School funding, was instrumental in leading the successful court challenge to the way Ohio pays for public schools during the 1990’s.

“The DeRolph school funding lawsuit was the case of the 20th century. The EdChoice private school voucher lawsuit filed on January 4, 2022, is destined to be the case of the 21st century,” Phillis said. “In fact, the private school voucher system is siphoning off hundreds of millions of dollars from an already underfunded system of public schools. The legislature and the governor are putting our state and our public school children at risk and they admit it.”

Nneka Jackson, a school board member with the Richmond Heights School District in Cuyahoga County, said private school vouchers are making school segregation in Ohio worse, not better. “If someone tells you this is about helping minority children, hook them up to a lie detector test asap and stand back because the sparks are going to fly,” Jackson said. “About 40 percent of Richmond Heights residents are white. Before the EdChoice private school voucher program about 26 percent of students at Richmond Heights were white and 74 percent were of color.

Today, after EdChoice, Richmond Heights has three percent while and 97 percent students of color,” Jackson said.

“Private schools are allowed to discriminate, plain and simple, based on disability, disciplinary records, academic standings, religious and financial standings. These are often proxies for race and other protected characteristics. Ohio is essentially engaged in state-sponsored discrimination in admissions and retention. You know who can’t do this? Public schools, Common schools,” Jackson said.

Dan Heintz, a board member of Cleveland Heights-University Heights School district, said his district lost $27million to private school vouchers, and this forced voters to pass two levies to raise property taxes. Heintz said 95 percent of our EdChoice users have never been enrolled in one of our schools. “So contrary to the narrative, these families aren’t fleeing a failing school. They are fleeing a tuition bill. A private school tuition bill that is now being paid by the Ohio taxpayers,” Heintz said.

Eric Resnik, a school board member from Canton City School System in Stark County, said high school students receive a $7,500 voucher while public school students receive far less from the state in basic education funding. “There is no truth to the claim by voucher proponents the “money follows the student,” Resnik said. “To those who say the money should follow the student, I ask why the discrepancy? Why should voucher students get $7,500 and some public school students get one-fifth or less than that amount? If the money were truly following the student, then each public school student should get $7,500.”

If you are still in need of booster shots or at home tests contact the Lake County General Health District at (440)350-2188 or email COVID19@lcghd.org. Lake Tran will provide free transportation. In early December, I was able to obtain free COVID tests at my local health department (Geauga County) and my husband and I were able to obtain boosters on a no appointment, walk-in basis. At that time all local libraries also offered free at home kits. Tests are very limited. By the time you read this all may have changed. Things seem to change daily. If you are in need of testing or booster shots, contact your local health department.
